The Town Of Vass is getting long-sought improvements to its sewer system after Moore County Commissioners this week authorized the issuance of five-million dollars worth of general obligation bonds. Acting as the governing body of The East Moore Water District Board, commissioners kept their promise to apply for the low-interest loan from Department Of Agriculture Rural Development Agency. Growth, both residential and commercial, limited in Vass because the existing sewage treatment plants operating at near capacity. Construction contracts were opened in February and signed in March. Vass is part of the county water system.
